Summary

I am a dedicated professional with a rich background in customer service and leadership, having excelled as both a call center agent and supervisor. With a strong foundation in communication and team management, I have transitioned into a new phase of my career, channeling my passion for writing and education. I am currently focused on crafting my own novels, having already written three short novels, and sharing my knowledge in the classroom. I am committed to inspiring others and building a meaningful career path that blends creativity with mentorship.

This blend of experiences showcases my adaptability and drive to make a positive difference in both the literary and educational arenas.
